If you intend to play on any other platform that you didn't purchase during your purchase of a "Game, Game" digital code for Assassin's Creed IV Black Flag, you will need to pay for an additional five-dollar season pass to get full access to the other game, DLC and downloadable content. Saving / loading data There are several options for saving/loading data. The default option for Black Flag is Steam Cloud, which is stored in the game files on your computer. When you load the game, it will launch directly to your last save point. If you want to change the location of your saved data, you can either remove the save files entirely or use a third party program to backup your save data. An alternative to Steam Cloud is the cloud storage service DropBox. This has a variety of space options, but you'll need a free DropBox account. When you're loading a save file, you will be asked to connect to Steam Cloud if it's been enabled. If you want to use a different location, you can go through the setup process and specify a different location. Once you have saved your game, you can download it to your console. Alternate save files There are different "save file" options that you can use to store your game data, depending on your platform. The method can vary from player to player, but you can find many suggestions online. PC and Mac As you may know, you can use the Cloud and save games features on your PC. You can download the game onto your Steam account and be logged into it whenever you want to play the game. Once your game has started, you can save it to the cloud or download it to 82157476af
